A Traveler's Journey

The familiar quote "Life is a journey, not a destination" is often mentioned when trying to give value to the dailiness of our lives. But without a defined destination, what is the purpose of traveling? We know that there is more to this life than just the journey.

Throughout Scripture, people always seem to be on a journey, coming and going, seeking a destiny that often eludes them. The Bible is the guidebook to life and you will find the meaning in its pages as well as directions for the journey and the destination of your trip. We are all travelers on the same road called life. Our roads may differ, but our destiny is the same. As with any traveler, we are in search of a place called home—a place of rest, peace, contentment, security, and belonging.

In our Wise Woman Getaway this spring, let's "unpack" and discard some of the things we have accumulated on our journeys so far, recalibrate the navigation system, plug in the purpose and meaning of this journey, and focus on the destination. It is our prayer that you will receive practical guidance in dealing with inevitable detours, insight that brings joy to the journey, and confidence you will know your destination. We look forward to a restful and beneficial weekend with you!
